Hampton Roads Instead of Charleston.

Wednesday of next week, according to the previous understanding, President night. The hour of his arrival is not yet definitely known, but it is presumed it will be soon after nightfall. This change in the plans of the President was made known by a telegram from Assistant Secretary Rudolph Forster to Acting Chairman J. C. Hemphill, of the clizens' arrangements committee, Mr. Forster said that he was in receipt of a wireless message from Secretary Charles D. Norton, who is with the President, to the effect that the party would land at Hampton Roads instead of at Charleston, and would come at once to Richmend.

It was further stated that the landing would be made on Tuesday, which will put Mr. Taft in Richmond late on that day.

No Change in Plans.

This will cause no modification inthe plans of the committee. These have already been approved by Mr. Taft himself, and no request for a change has been made. The only difference will be that the President will spend Tuesday night is. Richmond.

Breakfast at the Executive Mansion with Governor and Mrs. Mann, the drive to the battlefields, the luncheon at the Jefferson and the address to the Virginia Educational Conference at the City Auditorium will continue to be the program.

City Auditorium will continue to be the program.

Later the time of the President's arrival wil become more definitely known. Wireless messages will announce his approach to the Virginia Capes, and when he passes into Hampton Roads Richmond and the country will be apprised of the moment of his landing. The presumption is that the Tennessee will anchor off Old Point, and that the President and his party will come to Richmond over the Chesapeake and Ohio. However, this will be a point for the decision of the Executive himself, and he may go to Norfolk and take a trash by way of the Norfolk and Western, via Petersburg. The reception committee will, of course, meet the President's train at any time he may arrive, and his stay in the city overnight will be regarded as an additional honor and pleasure. As a matter of course, the chance to see so much more of Richmond will be eagerly grasped by him.
